Bone and Rag/dog bowl and collar

Unable to find durable dog accessories that matched rather than marred the look of their period home in London, partners Alex Sullivan and Jeremy Cooper took matters into their own hands. "Our current collection of dog beds is inspired by the interior designer David Hicks," says Sullivan, who took a break from a career in advertising to set up Bone and Rag. The firm prides itself on using the best of British craftsmanship.

Dog bowls are made by pewter specialist Wentworth in Sheffield – the material was chosen because it is a heavy metal alloy and so bowls will not shift around while the dog is eating. The collars are made by The Heritage Belt Company in Northampton whose other customers include Mulberry. boneandrag.com — AK

Ci/stà/bottle holder

Italy's Legnotecnica does away with unsightly wrought-iron wine racks and balancing bottle holders. The company's Ci/stà ("it fits" in Italian) containers are made from beech and feature a modular design that makes them easy to stack in the cellar. They come in three sizes so you can let that prized bubbly or Barolo rest easy. — TC cista.it

Genuine Italian gelato is now available in London at Adriano di Petrillo's new store, Dri Dri, on Portobello Road. Dri Dri gelati use no additives or emulsifiers and its products are often lower in fats and sugars than other brands on the market – but just as sweet.

Seven months of recipe development have gone into flavours such as fragola sorbet and pistachio, whose nuts are sourced from Bronte in Sicily. Even in the depths of the British winter, di Petrillo says sales are still the "same as they were in July". — AK dridrigelato.com architectural environments. It opens with several beautiful historical case studies, which chart the origins of the topic, including Lance Wyman's work for the Mexico 'Olympics. This is complemented with a comprehensive and colourful scan of more contemporary work, neatly rounded off with an addendum of interviews with industry experts and movement founders. — RSP uniteditions.com
